

P04 - EXCEPTIONAL BANKING

This program will not constitute a complete application with driver (without output), but it will instead familiarize the code with exception handling mechanisms, along with several tests to demonstrate the correctness of the solution.

The goal of this project includes developing my ability to understand object-oriented code. Also, it would develop my understanding of the difference between checked and unchecked exceptions and get practice both throwing and catching exceptions of each kind. Finally, this project provides more practice for writing tests, specifically tests that detect whether exceptions are thrown under the prescribed circumstances or not.